It doesn't matter whether you're the most ambitious student in class or you simply want to get the degree and pass your classes as quickly as possible- you'll have to improve your essay writing skills whether you like it or not. The starting point is a shift in your attitude. You shouldn't perceive essays as burdening assignments on boring topics. This type of project gives you a chance to explore, elevate your knowledge, think creatively, and present unique ideas. Once you realize how important it is for you to boost your writing skills, you'll easily achieve that goal thanks to these 15 websites that can turn you into an essay writing guru. 1. AskPetersen Julie Petersen, an English language teacher and freelance writer, has created a great website to support all students willing to learn how to write. You'll find study guides, essay samples, educational articles, and helpful tools that will enable you to approach the assignment with ease. In the blog section, you'll find instructions on how to cover each stage of the writing process, as well as inspirational articles that will make you excited about writing something of your own. ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ 2. Harvard College Writing Center - Strategies for Essay Writing You cannot develop great writing skills if you lack a solid foundation to build on. It's always best to start from the basics. Harvard College Writing Center offers detailed instructions for proper academic writing. You'll start by learning how to read an assignment, how to develop the essay's structure, and how to cover all other stages of the process. 3. Essay Map An academic essay requires diligent planning. An outline is necessary, since it keeps you focused on the essay question and enables you to develop strong thesis and arguments. Essay Map is a free online tool that requires you to input the main details about the introduction, main ideas, supporting details, and conclusion of your paper. Then, you'll get an appealing outline that will encourage you to follow the plan. 4. A Step-by-Step Guide: "How to Write My Essay Due Tomorrow" Essay writing can be really stressful when you're limited by a looming deadline. You don't have enough space to cover all stages properly, so you need to work faster and more effectively. EssayMama provides effective guidelines that will put you on the right track. If you follow the recommended steps, you'll be able to complete a decent paper within few hours. ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ Before you can progress to more complex academic assignments, you need to become a master of the basic essay structure. At this website, you'll find a sample essay that demonstrates all principles of basic academic writing. Instead of reading rules and recommendations, you see an actual paper tailored in accordance with the standards you need to meet. 6. College Essay Guy Ethan Sawyer, better known as the College Essay Guy, helps students tell their stories. He remembers his college experience vividly, so he is willing to share his tips and experience in order to teach students how to write properly. You'll find great sample essays, articles, and tutorials in the Blog section. Sawyer also offers a "Complete Guide to Writing the Personal Statement", so you can rely on that resource when completing college or scholarship applications. 7. Persuasive Essay Thesis Builder Take a moment to think: what stage of the essay development process is the most challenging one? It's probably the thesis statement, which should be unique, believable, and authoritative. This statement will set the course of the entire paper. The Thesis Builder tool enables you to tailor a strong thesis statement, which you can then develop into a clean outline. The tool is automated, but the result will be based upon your own input. 8. University of Toronto: Some General Advice on Academic Essay-Writing College and university teachers are not usually willing to explain how a student should develop an essay stage-by-stage. They just give you the essay question and expect you to complete the paper with excellence. The University of Toronto fills in that gap with a useful guide that teaches you how to come up with an argument, formulate questions and hypothesis, and compose the paper while keeping the overall purpose and form in mind. ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ 9. EssayPunch When you need in-depth support on your way towards becoming an essay writing guru, this is the online resource you can count on. You'll find preset writing prompts that will challenge you to practice more frequently. In addition, the program offers interactive online exercises that help you understand the pre-writing, writing, structuring, editing, and publishing phases. 10. Hemingway Editor You do not want to complicate your style too much. You might think you would impress your teachers by using big words and writing complex sentences, but that won't be the case. Hemingway Editor will help you get back to simplicity and clarity. Simply paste your text in the designated field, and try to get rid of the highlighted sections that feature complicated sentences, complex phrases, passive voice, and more. Plagiarism is a serious sin in academic writing. Even when you do your best to come up with your own ideas and arguments, it's easy to forget referencing a particular source you used. That's why you need to run every single essay through PlagTracker before submitting it. Thanks to this free tool, you can be confident that your papers are entirely unique. The highest achievers in your class are able to learn and write more within a shorter period of time. They know how to make the writing process easier by relying on tricks that always work. You can always rely on appropriate online resources to help you get the work done! ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ Featured photo credit: Green Chameleon via stocksnap.io As a professional writer I often struggle to start my own essays, looking at the blank page in front of me. It's frightening enough for me, an adult journalist, so how could we expect kids and teenagers to write amazing essays? No wonder they are spending hours in front of the desk, trying to conceive an essay that can land them an A or one of the positions at an Ivy League college. This is why essay writing coaches are so busy, guiding kids on how to write the perfect paper. However, is this only a simple creativity problem? Or are we adults are guilty of something more? ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ Well, we are! Teachers often provide shallow or way too simple guidelines, which fail to actually guide the child towards writing a good essay. That amazing essay is not going to come up from the plain instructions you are usually given, so here are the things no one is going to tell you about writing an essay. Get the inspiration from these and rock those papers! Play with your writing Most students are going to spend hours in front of the blank paper, wondering what to write when they are asked for a story. This is because we don't all have exciting, adventurous lives, so writing a story essay is not an easy task, if you are trying to tell a personal story. However, your imagination has no limits! Instead of trying to write a perfectly true story for the essay, just start from a real fact and embellish it in a credible way. Make sure you provide reliable facts and you tie your story to reality by adding citations. ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ When you are asked to write an expository essay on a case, most people would take on the same case in the news or in the literature. This means there are going to be dozens of similar essays to read for the evaluator. Boring and full of cliches essays that seem to be copy-pasted from the same machine. Break the pattern by writing a completely different essay! If everyone is talking about the way millennials like to spend time online, you can write about how millennials change the fashion world. The new perspective is going to attract the reader and will make you stand out from all the other students who chose to write the same case. It doesn't need to be the way you see a case - as long as it's a unique perspective, it doesn't matter if you or the teacher agree with it. Formatting is more important than you think Content is very important for an essay, but formatting is equally essential. If you can see the formatting errors, such as small caps and lack of periods, before you actually start reading the essay, you will judge it was written by a poor student. This is how teachers think and act, so an edited essay, even if it's a poorly written one, has more chances of getting bigger marks, compared to a very well written essay, which lacks formatting. Don't be afraid to stir up controversies. ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ If no one is offended by your essay, there is something wrong with the essay. A high quality paper is one that stirs up controversies, that sparks interest! I good essay is one that is able to make people comment and talk about it, even if they are saying negative things. But then there is a high amount of relativity in writing an essay... Interesting for you What is interesting for the person reading the personal essay. This is OK and you can't do anything to change this. Each person has his own perspective and there are no two teachers who are going to award the same grade to the same essay. Unlike math or physics, literature is relative. There are emotions and perspectives involved, so there is no 100% correct answer. This is why most people will never get 100 points out of 100 for an essay, especially when there are multiple readers who rate the paper. Don't let this fact discourage you from writing great essays. Accept there are things you can't control and simply give your best each time you write an essay. ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ ↳ Scroll down to continue reading article ↳ Featured photo credit: Unsplash via hd.unsplash.com
